Enough of Land And Love; Jack Prefers The Sea

Of course, as the saying goes, a sailor has a sweetheart in every port. But some of the sweethearts who pick up the sailors from off the boats are not what they are cracked up to be.

Floyd J. Robinson, 20 years old, among those waiting at the county jail for the mills of the gods to start grinding, will say so.

Floyd is a fireman on the U. S. S. Georgia, and his home is in Jacksonville, Florida. A week ago today he got shore leave at San Diego.

Softly humming "Ja Dai", he donned his freshly-ironed jacket and bell-bottomed trousers, stuck a newly-scrubbed white hat on his head and dashed down the gang plank to wreak havoc among the southern California belles. There was one in particular, but —

Just where he was when he woke up on Sunday morning he can't remember, but his money belt was gone. So was his sweetheart.

Sick of the sea and not very proud of himself, Floyd started home to Florida, but he was so hungry by the time he reached Maricopa he turned himself over to Deputy Sheriff Cooper, who brought him to Phoenix Wednesday morning.

Until next Tuesday Robinson is A. W. O. L. After that he will be a deserter, unless word is received in the meantime regarding his disposition from the commanding officer of his ship.

Floyd is tight keen to go back. He loves the big ocean and wants to get back where the flying fishes play, and the only women present are the Charles Dana Gibson models, 1900, smiling seductively from the walls of the officers' ward room.
